2021: International Year for the Elimination of Child Labour

In declaring 2021 the International Year for the Elimination of Child Labour, the UN is taking immediate measures to eradicate forced labour, modern slavery and human trafficking. It will also secure the prohibition and elimination of the worst forms of child labour, including recruitment and use of child soldiers, and end child labour in all its forms by 2025.

The Centre for Human Rights Education at Curtin unites research, teaching, advocacy and scholarly activity in the area of human rights. It educates the community on human rights issues and challenges, and informs human rights policy and debate in Australia, Asia and globally. Through its work, the centre prompts cultural dialogue, emphasises lived experience and engages with communities across the world to bring about equality and social justice.

This is one of four UN themes for 2021. Visit un.org for more.

2021: International Year of Creative Economy for Sustainable Development

The International Year of Creative Economy for Sustainable Development recognises the vital role of the creative economy in promoting sustained and inclusive social, cultural and economic growth for all countries. The creative economy includes fields such as performing arts, heritage, music, writing and publishing, and is the catalyst for innovation in all other industry sectors, boosting new jobs, technologies and productivity, while building social cohesion.

Curtin's School of Media, Creative Arts and Social Inquiry is renowned for its unique, ground-breaking combination of critical and creative research in digital futures, social justice, international relations and creative industries. The school applies research outcomes in teaching, learning and wider community contexts to foster the original and critical thinkers our world needs.

This is one of four UN themes for 2021. Visit un.org for more.
